Fans of shows such as Man vs Wild, Survivorman, and even the reality competition show OG Survivor were connected to their TV screens in 2010 when Discovery Channel launched a new survival show, Dual Survival. The accurately titled show aims to take two very different fans of nature and release them into the wild, allowing them to do what they do well: survive. Like the Ganjor Couple for outsiders, each season is paired down to earth, a loving nature of wild experts with military-trained weapons experts. Hosts will often butt heads in an attempt to show the rest that their way of life is superior. Conflicting personalities mean the hosts don't just have to survive beyond the great, they also had to endure each other. Du! Survival lasted nine seasons and produced a total of 84 episodes over the course of six years in the air. By then, many juicy stories were revealed. From hosts forging their credentials to animal abuse set to an audience showing clear unrealistic nature of the reality show, there is a lot of behind the scenes as there is on the foot of the vulnerable former host Cody Lundin. Here are 15 Secrets You Don't Know About Survival Two. 15 Cody Lundin Claims Joe Teti Threatened to End His Life After original host Dave Canterbury was fired, Discovery Channel replaced him with another military-trained survival fan, Joe Teti. Teti was proud of being All American Hero and initially seemed to click very well with the show's veteran host, Cody Lundin. According to Lundin, things aren't what they seem to be when the camera stops rolling. The duo are not as buddy-buddy because the producers want you to believe. In fact, Lundin fears Teti. Teti has a short fuse and will always intimidate Lundin with multiple weapons and body photos to try and keep him in line. According to TMZ, Teti threatened to 'bury' her on a mountain while waving around the ice axe. During the shooting in Hawaii, Lundin says Teti threatened to imagine it with a slim. 14 Dave Canterbury Admits Lying About His Qualifiers Along with Cody Lundin, Dave Canterbury is one of Survival Dual's first hosts. Lundin and Canterbury are blueprints for the entire series. They are the first survivalists/military combos that lay the ground for the rest of the show. The duo will together for the first two seasons before Canterbury were sacked. Why is Canterbury being released from a successful reality show? He was caught both about his extensive military exercises. On his résumé, Canterbury stated he was a shooter in the Army. This, among other claims, proved false. After his release, Canterbury admitted YouTube, Do I decorate a few things on my resume? I did. I didn't do it to hurt anyone. I don't do it to make things difficult for anyone in my family. I actually did, number one, better my family. 13 Joe Teti Harms Dogs On The Set of Reports differently on this one. No one seems to be 100% sure if Joe Teti is injured or ends the dog's life while on the set of Double Survival. Not that it matters, as harmful to poor animals in any way is a sad act. As TMZ reported, Joe Teti, the former Green Beret, had shot one of the final scenes when several prying cats ran across the set... apparently escaped the dog. We were told the dog actually got one of the cats in his jaw, and that's when Teti went after the canines. Obviously, this led to the release of Teti from the show. Following the incident, the network facility was given a memo stating Teti was not allowed to be on the premises, banning it from the Discovery Channel office. 12 Discovery Channel Cancels The Show Once Before After Joe Teti's very desirable shots, Discovery Channel pulled the plug on Double Survival. The sixth season of the Show was suddenly embraced into four sheer episodes that aired from September to October 2015. After releasing Teti, the production also decided to cut ties with his co-host at the time, Matt Graham. They then pull the plug on the whole show. Cancellations will only last for several months. In January 2016, Dwi Survival will return for its seventh season. The reality show's new iteration features two brand new hosts in Bill McConnell and Grady Powell. After another two tumultuous seasons, Discovery Channel hasn't made a new episode since 2016. The show has not been officially cancelled, but it looks like his life chances are thin. 11 Fans Called Foul On Some Performance Scenes Like most reality shows with a strong following, Dwi Survival fans seem to always die set to reveal the cracks of the show. They jumped on any attempt to call the show for anything that seemed staged or false. Staunch viewers were brought in to light up a particular episode in which Matt Graham had a matchbook that seemed constantly changing color. The Eagle-eyed audience insisted that Graham was holding a match book with red tips. After he handed them over to Joe Teti, the match was green. Once they return to Graham's position, they are again red. This isn't the only example of fans giving up about. There are also cases of wild animals that clearly hover in front of time to make it easier to catch. 10 Cody Lundin On Health and Safety Disagreements For the first two and a half seasons of Dual Survival, Cody Lundin famously walked around barefoot no matter the situation and always looked for nothing. That doesn't exactly happen as in 2014, though- an affordable Lundin was fired over safety and health concerns. On certain examples involve manufacturers asking Lundin to fall into frozen water for the purpose of obtaining Lundin was heartbroken when he was discharged from the show that he had been a part of four years. In a letter on his blog, he wrote. Although I would miss the elements of the show, what I would most miss was my fans and the opportunity to teach - globally - life-saving skills, indigenous cultures, and values of integrity and respect towards our natural world. 9 Matt Graham Claimed to Have Been Cody's Teacher When Cody Lundin was fired from Dwi Survival, it wasn't just producer and co-host Joe Teti with whom he was sick. The former star who wore the braid also had a bone to choose from with his successor, Matt Graham. The hardcore survival community is small and tight. This led to many examples of Graham and Lundin not only running in the same circles but also friendly. Their friendship soured when Graham tried to muscle in some Lundin businesses. Graham tried to get product support from a company by telling them he had taught Lundin everything he knew. Said the company, which was unaware of Graham, reached out to Lundin. Lundin clearly rejected the statement and professional survivalists have been at an ever-happening possibility ever since. 8 Joe Teti May Was Lying About His Military Exercises When Discovery Channel sought someone to replace Dave Canterbury, they chose Joe Teti, another man with a military background. They are all ready to replicate the dynamic between Cody Lundin, a survivalist who is laid back, and a tough American serviceman. One thing they are unwilling may have replicated has hired another liar. Like Canterbury in front of him, Teti did indeed serve in the military, he also happened to be lying on his résumé. Teti is alleged to have completed the Special Forces Fighting course and Special Forces Sniper. He also supposedly participated in a government unit so secret that he was not allowed to name the organization, only that it was very, very secret. Many veterans, including retired Army sergeant Major George Davenport, found these claims were phony and decided to inspect Teti. Davenport says it has been checking with Special Forces schools and no records to support Teti's climb. 7 Discovery Channel Got The Name Wrong It's not a good sign for a new show when the network can't get the title right. That's what happens when promotions for Dwi Survival make their way to YouTube. Published by the official YouTube Discovery Channel account, the video is titled, Dual Survivor Tonight at 10 PM e/p on the Discovery Channel. Not only that, but a double description is down on the tycoon, say, Two Survivors on the Discovery Channel, Friday at 10pm e/p. Video in question have the correct sound and graphics. Interestingly, Dual Survivor is actually the original title for the offerings before they switch to Dwi Survival. Maybe discovery channel didn't get the memo in time. 6 Edit Made It Seem Like The Pairs Hated Between Each Other Since Dual Survival Survival Reality shows at heart, editors and publishers also enforce drama between on-camera duos. This is an easy way to increase the tension trapped in the wilderness with one other and minimal tools. Season seven parsing Bill McConnell and Grady Powell seem to get this worst. McConnell, a hippy survivalist, and Powell, the former United States Green Berets seemed head butt more often than any other pair of performances he had ever seen. McConnell was shown too chatting and a literal hugger tree and Powell sparked a little too hard as the nails. When asked about how true this is to their personality, Grady recorded it up to the TV magic. 5 Cody Lundin Chemistry Tested With 21 People While performing a list of Dwi Survival thriller facts on his Facebook page, Cody Lundin wrote that he, Chemical tested with 21 people for an opponent's role in the show for all season including some Navy SEALs, Navy Recon, Green Beret, Ranger, Marine Corps Shooter, PJ One of the weirdest things about the chemical tests performed by Discovery Channel is that there has still been so many turnovers over the show's nine seasons. They put a lot of effort into getting the perfect pair, but no duo lasted more than two and a half seasons. Also, since both co-hosts Cody make dubious claims on their resumes, we can only assume the amount of resume padding that some of the other 19 applicants try. 4 Cody Lundin Is Suing Discovery Channel Among alleged attempts Joe Teti tried to harm him and how he was persecuted while set, this one came as no real surprise. In addition to these two claims, Lundin sued the Discovery Channel because of the way the show is edited. Lundin believes that the behind-the-scenes editor and producer makes him look like his life skills don't get to the snuff. He claims that this has cost him a lot of work. One particular scene involved Lundin losing his patience with co-host Joe Teti. The duo tried to transport slides, water, and matches from higher to the basement while keeping them dry. Lundin seemed instances and started throwing all the substances into the water, looking not only like crazy people, but also like amateurs. 3 Sticky Narrated The Show Most Kids who grew up in the '90s and watched a healthy dose of Nickelodeon have sweet memories of Stick Stickey. The popsicle wood with the golden heart is nick's ridiculous host in the afternoon. The man behind the stick was also the voice of Dwi Survival, the New York voice actress, Paul Christie. It's pretty funny that the same guy voiced both of these projects. Stickey has a sporadic resurgence as The '90s House Is All That. The programming blocks broadcast on TeenNick ran between 2011 and 2015, meaning people of all ages can hear Christie the voice of wood speak on one network and change channels for the same man narrated how to cauterize the wound. 2 His Rating Taking Nose Ahead of season seven dual Survival came around in 2016, the show has gone through four different hosts. Viewers have seen the departures of Dave Canterbury, Cody Lundin, Joseph Teti, and Matt Graham before Bill McConnell and Grady Powell given hosting duties. The fans were lukekeal on the couple, and it was reflected in the rated. During the third, fourth, and fifth seasons, the episode averaged around 1.5 million viewers. As soon as the seventh season began airing in January 2016, the show is struggling to reach a million fans per episode. McConnell will only survive this season before Discovery Channel again reshuffles the hosts. Josh James, Bo McClone, Jeff Zausch, and EJ Snyder in season eight and nine won't fare better. 1 Difference Between Survival And Survival Entertainment Television shows, first and forefire, the way it is entertainment. If they are not entertaining, then they do not do their job. One way to make sure the show is working as best as possible is to sometimes inject a healthy dose of drama. Duplicate Survival added so many fabrication scenarios that denial at the beginning of the show had to be a chance. A line was added at the beginning which stated, On several occasions, situations were presented to Dave and Cody so they could show survival techniques. Lundin claimed these changes were made to simplify the show for the same entertainment, but actually pointed it out. In an interview with Master Woodsman, Cody said, Producers who don't have outside skills, but have complete control over what they think this profession is about people doing the damage. --- Can you think of any other dark secrets about Biennial Survival?
